Re Item V

Reasoned statement with regard to novelty, inventive step or industrial applicability; citations and explanations supporting such statement

Reference is made to the following document:

D1: DE-A-3716883

The document D1 is regarded as being the closest prior art to the subject-matter of claim 1, and shows (the references in parentheses applying to this document):

A device (46) for counting shots fired by a firearm (col.3, l.26-37 and claim 7), comprising a cartridge chamber containing a cartridge that can be expelled through an expulsion window.

An emission means transmits the counted signals to a microcomputer. However, the casings expelled, are sensed via the absence of background light or day light.

The subject-matter of claim 1 differs from this known device in that it comprises a first emission means designed to emit a continuous electromagnetic signal in such a manner that it is interrupted by a casing expelled from the cartridge chamber and corresponding to the fired cartridge.

The subject-matter of claim 1 is therefore new (Article 33(2) PCT).

The problem to be solved by the present invention may be regarded as providing an apparatus that can count the fired shots more safely.

The solution to this problem proposed in claim 1 of the present application is considered as involving an inventive step (Article 33(3) PCT) because the solution is not known from the prior art. Other prior art devices e.g. use shock sensors.

Claims 2-11 are dependent on claim 1 and as such also meet the requirements of the PCT with respect to novelty and inventive step.

The device claimed is industrially applicable.
